Inflation

Like the Russians, the threat of inflation is always with us. The battle between inflationary and deflationary forces is to the domestic front what the East-West struggle is abroad.

Right now the battle is raging afresh. The cost of living index has hit a new high again after a climb of many months. The steel industry has announced a price boost that will surely have spiraling effects throughout the economy.

President Eisenhower, anxious to avoid controls, has urged business not to hike prices unless necessary to get expansion money, and called on labor to relate demands for wage increases closely to advances in productivity.

Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey has of course warmly defended the government's policy of keeping a lid on money and credit as an essential weapon in this fight. The report of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee lends support to his position.

On the other side, certain leading

Democrats, particularly some involved in Senator Byrd's inquiry into U.S. financial conditions, attack the "tight money" policy as costly and damaging to important segments of the economy. They stress the perils of deflation.

With inflationary pressures evidently mounting in spite of existing efforts to combat them, it would be surprising if the present tug-of-war on the issue should be resolved in favor of easier money.

But however the current phase works out, the conflict will go on indefinitely. Our tremendous economy is constantly churned by powerful forces which continuously threaten to become unmanageable. Inevitably in this time government must walk a high wire between the two perils.

Inescapably, too, there will be loud pleaders on both sides who will argue that we are approaching one peril or the other. We shall just have to keep our shirts on and hope that out of the turbulent air will emerge policies that somehow keep us traveling that delicate wire.

Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That the great wall of China, stretching 1,900 miles, is the world's longest cemetery . . . but try and tell that to anybody who has been stabbed by one!

That there are enough blood cells in the human race to carpet the surface of the entire world. (The big problem of the 20th century is to see that they aren't used for this purpose.)

That there is a book out entitled, "Things You Can Buy For a Nickel." . . . Yep, it's a short book.

That in Persia it is believed human tears are good for certain chronic diseases . . . So mourners at funerals often are presented with sponges to soak up their tears . . . Afterward the sponges are collected, wrung out and the tears bottled.

That Lola, the basset hound in the Broadway musical, "Lil' Abner," is a temperamental as any human star . . . She turns up her nose at ordinary water . . . insists on seltzer.

That Dr. Henry Gibbons gave this scientific description of a kiss: "The anatomical juxtaposition of two vibiculis oris muscles in a state of contraction."

Any questions? That, if you're planning a second honeymoon at Niagara Falls, you'd better not postpone it too long . . . Some experts believe the falls, which are steadily receding, will be gone in another 5,000 years.

That Montgomery Ward's new catalogue lists among the things you can buy by mail: mink stoles, an ice skating rink for children, a $6,695 diamond ring — and a raincoat for your dog.

That it was Seneca, the Roman wise man, who observed, "Men do not care how nobly they live, but only how long, although it is within the reach of every man to live nobly, but within no man's power to live long."

In Hollywood

By PATRICK MCNULTY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Don't ask Walter Kelley what time it is. He has hocked his watch—again. For eight years Kelley has been knocking on the door of Hollywood's big time, and perhaps, in some ways, he is typical of the film industry's corps of budding but not blooming actors.

During those years Kelley has had some mild ups, but mostly watch-pawning downs.

Remember him in these supporting roles?—

The fellow who won Terry Moore in "Come Back Little Sheba."

One of "Marty's" girle - book reading buddies.

A frightened dogface in "Men at War."

The subway spranger who picked up the girl in "Bachelor's Party."

Not an impressive list of credits, but Kelley—35 and no starry-eyed youngster — continues to keep plugging.

The question is—why? Kelley's life is not one of squiring chic starlets to expensive Sunset Strip saloons, flashy sports cars, wild parties—or much of the film magazines.

Well on the fringe of the Hollywood glitter, Kelley lives in a $45-a-month gardener's cottage on a Beverly Hills estate.

The finance company is threatening a flanking movement on his partially unpaid-for 1956 convertible.

And a $150, one-day television stint has been his only job in more than two months.

During his career, which began with a San Francisco little theater group, Kelley has averaged about $3,000 a year. This includes an occasional modeling job.

And Kelley realizes the outlook for hitting the jackpot—especially after eight years—is slim and getting slimmer.

A personable fellow, Kelley seems quite capable of donning an Ivy League suit and making a comfortable living in a more prosaic but better-paid field.

Why not, asked a newsman who bumped into the Seattle-born actor in his favorite bistro.

Signing the tab for a gin and tonic, Kelley thought a moment, then replied:

"Why, I suppose it's because I'm an actor."

Failure of Baby Teeth To Appear Not Alarming

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Mrs. W. writes that she has a friend whose little girl is a year old but has not cut any baby teeth yet. She wants to know whether this is unusual and whether anything should be done about it.

It does not sound as though one should become upset about the fact that this baby has not yet cut her first teeth. There is considerable variation in the time when youngsters cut their baby teeth. I think nothing should be done, at least for a while, since in all probability the baby teeth will start cutting soon.

Mrs. V. would like a discussion of nail biting and nose picking in children. She says that her nine-year-old grandson does this almost constantly.

Things of this sort belong in the class of "bad" habits; actually they are perhaps not so much "bad" as a sign of emotional distress. It is quite likely that this nine-year-old boy is unhappy about something, either at home or in school.

In cases of this sort, if the emotional cause can be removed and the child given plenty of things to do, he will get over these bad habits.

Mrs. O. B. has asked for an opinion on the value of sea kelp for children. She particularly wants to know if it helps in physical and mental development.

It is my understanding that sea kelp in the diet does not have any miraculous qualities, either physically or mentally. It does, however, contain iodine in rather large quantities. Some iodine in the diet is not only helpful in the prevention of goiter, but also is needed by the body.

A Glance Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Cochran, of White Hall planned to observe their 50th wedding anniversary on July 19.

Ashland Mayor David E. Wilson retired from the Alton Railroad after 45 years of service.

The centennial celebration of the Jacksonville State Hospital was to be held on July 27.

Charles Wade, 81, of Winchester, walked to Carrollton to attend the Greene County Fair.

20 YEARS AGO

Hundreds of acres of growing crops were flooded when 4 1/2 inches of rain fell in Scott county.

Morgan county spring lambs sold at East St. Louis for $11.75.

Cass county Legionnaires held a meeting at Ashland.

An aerial map of Morgan county was made by the Conservation Department.

50 YEARS AGO

Tomlinson's Clothing Store was selling men's two-piece suits for $6.00.

The C. P. & St. L. Railroad pay car arrived in Jacksonville and distributed considerable money to car shop workers.

A farmer residing between Bluffs and Meredosia came to Jacksonville, met a gambler and was fleeced out of $600.

The Jacksonville fire department was called to the home of S. W. Foreman, a cigarmaker, at 932 West Lafayette avenue to extinguish a small blaze.

Most Of My letters about children come from mothers, but this is from a father: He writes that one of the teachers in the school where his daughter goes told the class that they should not take mineral oil because this would interfere with the absorption of vitamin A in the diet.

Mineral oil will interfere with the absorption of vitamin A from the digestive tract to some degree. Frequent or regular taking of mineral oil would not only interfere with the absorption of vitamin A, but could also cause serious irritation to the lower part of the intestinal tract.

Finally, Mrs. D. writes that her two children, a girl seven and a boy 10, like to take walks in the woods on their farm. However, there are many copperhead snakes on the place and she would like to know what to do if one of them is bitten.

The children ought to be instructed to stay away from snakes, so far as possible, and perhaps should wear high boots. If a child should be bitten—the most common place is on the legs—a tourniquet should be placed on the limb above the bite and a doctor called at once. The tourniquet should not be excessively tight, nor left on too long.

Fresh, firm cucumbers will cool the hottest appetite. Alone, or combined with other good foods, they are nature's blessing on torrid-weather menus.

Two cucumbers, about 8 inches long; 1 cup thinly sliced onion rings; 1 cup sour cream; 1 tablespoon cider vinegar; 1 tablespoon water; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon ground white pepper; 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh dill; slices of hard-cooked egg for garnish.

Wash cucumbers, wipe dry and score down the sides with a fork. Slice thin, and combine with onion rings, sour cream, cider vinegar, water, salt, ground white pepper and fresh dill. Toss lightly. Turn into a serving bowl. Garnish with hard-cooked egg slices.

Ham-Cucumber Spread (1 quart)
One-pound can mild ham, 2 large cucumbers, peeled, chopped fine; 1 teaspoon ground ginger; 1 teaspoon garlic salt; 1 cup mayonnaise.

Cut ham into slices, mince fine. Combine with remaining ingredients. Serve on crackers, salty rye or use as sandwich spread.

Stuffed Cucumber-Cheese Salad (8 servings)
Four cucumbers, 8 inches long; salt, 3 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese; 2 tablespoons minced onion; 3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper; 3 tablespoons finely chopped red pepper; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon ground white pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, lettuce, tomato wedges, mayonnaise.

Wash cucumbers, score with fork and cut in half, crosswise. Scoop out seeds, leaving centers hollow, and sprinkle inside with salt. Drain. Combine cream cheese, onion, green and red pepper, salt, white pepper, and paprika. Mix well, and pack into the cucumber cavities. Wrap in foil. Chill several hours or overnight. Slice and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

If desired, slice cucumbers into thin slices and serve as hors d'oeuvres with fruit juice or cocktails.

BROILED FRANKFURTERS—Without the help of a diving rod, one expert has found water, strange as it seems, in a Frankfurt, Germany, swimming pool packed with broiled frankfurters. The expert, whose leg can be seen jutting from water at lower right, was just one of thousands in the area seeking relief from the oppressive heat.

HOT!—It wasn't really 185 degrees in Beverly, Mass., when this picture was taken. It just felt that way. Mechanics investigating the trouble found what perspiring residents suspected: Electrical wiring had overheated.

HOME COMING
STANTON, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Callie Bowen, 69, found a way to lure her children home for more frequent visits.

Increasing Need Seen for Bipartisan Power Policy

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Some sweet day in the not-too-distant future Congress, the executive departments of government and the Democrats and the Republicans are going to have to get together on a bipartisan public power policy, and then stick to it.

This has become increasingly apparent as a result of the kicking around this issue has received in the last few years.

The Eisenhower partnership power policy for cooperation between federal-state-local governments and private power companies has not had wide acceptance. There is still too much pressure to let the federal government do all or none of it.

The administration appointed a high-powered commission under retired Adm. Ben Moreell to study this question, then practically ignored its report.

What emerged finally was a cabinet-level committee to coordinate the activities of all government agencies interested in power and water resources. This committee still meets.

BUT WHAT IT HAS EVER done, since issuing its initial policy statement, doesn't get in the papers.

It has no apparent ties with Congress. Anyway, Congress still plays the power issue by the feel of political pressure.

The administration first tangled with Congress over the Dixon-Yates contract in Tennessee Valley.

President Eisenhower now faces new trouble over his nomination of Budget Bureau official Arnold R. Jones to be a TVA director and the reappointment of Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall as a member of Federal Power Commission.

Because he has no knowledge of the area, no experience as an engineer and no congressional backing, the Jones appointment is taken as a calculated administration insult to TVA.

Chairman Kuykendall has been charged with a number of irregularities in connection with the granting of a license to Idaho Power Co. to build three dams on the Snake River.

A House Interior subcommittee's takedown of the alternate single high dam at Hells Canyon makes Kuykendall's confirmation more difficult politically in the Senate.

THERE IS GENERAL admission that the single high dam, approved by the Senate, would have more fully developed the resources of the Snake. But because of its far greater cost, there is justification for not going through with it.

If the government built the one high dam at Hells Canyon it would mean that other projects in other parts of the country would have to be delayed. The government just can't raise the money to build them all at once.

This is the point on which long-range government power development policy becomes necessary. A Bonneville Power Administration survey last year showed that even when all public and private power projects now licensed and under construction in the northwest are completed, there will still be a shortage of 184,000 kilowatt capacity by 1964-65 and 1,194,000 kw. shortage by 1966-67.

TO MAKE UP THIS shortage, the Department of Interior is now considering the building of a new, high, public power dam at Pleasant Valley, below Hell's Canyon on the Snake River.

Lower costs and greater benefits are claimed for Pleasant Valley than for Hells Canyon. But if Pleasant Valley is ever built, it would flood out a proposed third Idaho Power Co. low dam at Hells Canyon and it would have to be abandoned.

This, in effect, is a proposed administration compromise with its own partnership policy and an attempt to compromise with the advocates of the single high dam at Hells Canyon.

This whole situation is now cited as proof that sometime there must be an end to a power policy dominated by politics.

Thinking It Over—

By Robert L. Diefenbacher, D. D.
(Written for NEA Service)

Pirate's Alley in New Orleans is one of the narrowest streets in America. It is so narrow that only pedestrian traffic can use the thoroughfare. As one reviews certain sinister incidents which took place on this byway, it scarcely seems possible that it should be flanked on one side by a church.

Even in the shadow of a house of God, sin have been committed and sins have been perpetrated. We are inclined to dwell on the evil which has taken place, while we overlook the good and holy.

On this same Pirate's Alley many acts of love and service have been performed. Prayers have been uttered to God, and charity has been shown to many.

We must learn to extend the influence of God and to make ineffective the power of evil wherever we are. We must remind ourselves and others of the higher spiritual values which affect life, instead of magnifying the acts of sin.

Why Blame Coddled Boy For Looking Like a Brat?

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

The boy appeared to be about 11—a sturdy youngster with a babyish, plump face. Behind him his tired-looking mother paid their fares—and turned to consider seat possibilities in our crowded bus.

There was one near me. Propelling the boy, she paused beside it saying, "Go on—take it. Sit down." As he obeyed, she shifted the packages she was carrying to reach for the bracing rod over her head.

Over the faces of her fellow passengers had come a strange look, an expression of cold curiosity. It was directed at the child. You could actually feel the wave of hostility toward the unburdened boy sitting beside his standing, burdened mother. Suddenly the woman beside me burst into angry whispering.

"Isn't that some sight?" she said. "The kid sits; the mother stands. What a brat . . ."

Did the mother notice the other passengers' antagonism toward her son?

I don't think so. The oversolicitous parent is never aware of the dislike we feel for her coddled child.

She doesn't want to know about it. What she wants above all else is to make the child appear more fortunate than she is. She must get our sympathy at any cost. So she gives him all the advantages—the bus seat, the breast of the chicken, the new shoes she needs herself.

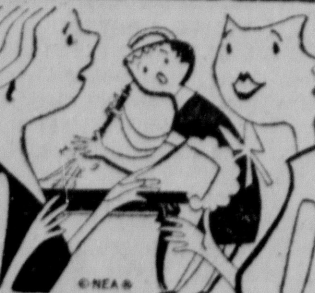

Her wish for these advantages is nothing compared to her driving need to make him seem to be abusing her. She has to make a careful point of ignoring the dislike we feel for the child as a spoiled, self-centered brat.

Were our hate of him to register with her, she might have to look at the truth behind her apparent generosity—the fact that she abuses him.

Naturally her child seems babyish and demanding. His helplessness has been cultivated as his mother's stock-in-trade. If he weren't helpless and demanding, she couldn't use him to show us how much she has to do for him—and make us deliver that all-important sympathy.

We all seek prestige. Sometimes like cavemen struggling over the bloody tid-bit sizzling over their fire, we'll kill each other for it. Not by the honest club, but by our unknown hunger for admiration. We'll deny our child any experience of his own generosity to feed our craving to be admired as generous—and maintain him in permanent infancy.

Northern Sentiment Hardens Against Civil Rights Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cold north wind began to blow Monday against Senate efforts to compromise the civil rights bill.

Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) said it is obvious to him "that the principal motive of the compromise seekers is to gut this bill of any effectiveness."

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) declared: "I think the bill is a good one as it stands," while Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) announced he will resist any efforts to amend it.

This Northern offensive against a compromise on the administration-backed legislation came in debate on the eve of a Senate vote that will decide whether the civil rights bill is to be brought to the Senate floor for action.

Southern senators fighting the bill have agreed to a vote Tuesday on a motion to bring the measure formally before the Senate. They bank on getting a series of amendments to soften its terms.

Can't Prevent Taking It Up

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the Southern opposition, has conceded he can't prevent the House-passed bill from being taken up. Sen. Johnson (D-Tex.), the Senate majority leader, has predicted the vote in favor of Senate consideration will be about 2-1.

Southern resignation to a full-dress debate on the bill itself may have been the signal Northern supporters were waiting for to begin their drive for passage.

The motion of Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, to take up the bill has been argued for seven days. Most of the speeches, however, have been made by Southerners bitterly opposed to the legislation. For the most part, Northerners have withheld their fire.

Creates Commission

The bill would create a Civil Rights Commission with broad subpoena rights. It would set up a civil rights division in the Justice Department and provide an assistant attorney general to head it.

Additionally, it would empower the attorney general to seek federal court injunctions against any real or threatened violations of civil rights. Persons disobeying the injunctions could be charged with contempt of court and punished without a jury trial. Southerners are particularly opposed to this section.

Can Filibuster

Southern Democrats can filibuster against a vote on the bill. It takes the affirmative vote of 64 of the 96 senators to limit debate. Russell has indicated the filibuster question will be decided by the extent to which the bill is modified by amendments.

Potter said the changes proposed by the bill's opponents would make a "travesty" of the measure.

Charge Laborer With Murder Of Lithuanian

CHICAGO (AP)—A murder charge was placed Monday against an 18-year-old unemployed laborer police said stomped to death a Lithuanian immigrant.

Held on the charge is Steve Greski.

Elevator Operator Seized In Trunk Murder Of Malloy

NEW YORK (AP) — A blonde elevator operator with theatrical ambitions Monday night admitted, police said, killing James F. Malloy and jamming his body into a small, black trunk.

They quoted Edward J. Polakowski, 23, as saying he shot Malloy because "I was up to my neck in debt."

Malloy, 53, who had no visible means of support, reportedly was in the lending business.

Police seized Polakowski earlier in the day and questioned him for seven hours before, they said, he broke down and admitted the killing.

Tests Promise New Jet Engine Quiet As Whisper

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — A new whispering giant of a jet engine blasted away at full throttle on a mountain side test stand here Monday, the modest roar that echoed over the sunlit rocks and sagebrush gave a promise of future quiet and reliable jet airplane service for cities throughout the world.

Listeners found themselves agreeing with the engine manufacturer, the Curtiss-Wright Corp., Woodridge, N.J., that the engine was much less noisy than the military jets now flying.

Roy T. Hurley, Curtiss-Wright president, said an airliner with four of the new jet engines—the Zephyr T338—also would be quieter than the current propeller-driven four engine transports.

Hurley told reporters current jets all use engines developed for military purposes. He said with satisfaction as newsmen, airport representatives and airline officials listened to the low sound output of the first engine noise demonstration of its kind.

"That's the sound level we think can be reached if we forget military engines and go commercial."

The 12,500-pound thrust engine was run up first at full power with observers 350 feet away. Sound measuring equipment registered 100 decibels, which Hurley said was generally considered the maximum noise output the public would tolerate. He added a four-engine propeller driven airplane at that distance would produce about 116 decibels and a military jet would produce up to 135.

3rd Person Dies: Shot In Wife Swapping Episode

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — A third person died Monday from a shooting which was blamed on a wife-swapping episode.

Regina Whitaker, 9, was the third member of her family to die from the exchange of shots June 25. Her mother, Mrs. Alma L. Martin, 36, and her 11-year-old brother, Jack, were killed instantly and Mrs. Martin's second husband, Stewart, 36, a photographer was wounded.

Thomas Whitaker, 36, who traded wives with Martin last year, was indicted last week on first-degree murder charges in the deaths of his former wife and their son.

Whitaker reportedly was disgruntled because Mrs. Martin received custody of the two Whitaker children when she divorced Whitaker.

'Diablo' Explodes, Breaks Windows 250 Miles Away

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — The atomic weapon "Diablo" exploded in a cloud of purple fire Monday and hurled its shock waves with such power that windows broke and cracked 250 miles away.

The damage was reported in Carson City, Nev. This was the greatest distance that damage had occurred since atomic tests were started here in 1951.

The blast delayed by a series of postponements since June 27, was seen and felt 350 miles away at Bridgeport, Calif.

The weapon with the devilish name was detonated atop a 500-foot tower at 4:30 a.m. It sent a spectacular mushroom cloud 30,000 feet into the air.

Light wind began moving the portion of the cloud above 15,000 feet toward southeastern Utah. Atomic Energy Commission officials said they expected the radioactive air mass to shift toward Wyoming later.

The AEC said only light fallout was expected at the test site.

Welcome Rain Cools The City And Spurs Late-Planted Crops

A welcome and gentle rain cooled off the town Monday morning and brought satisfaction to the crops of the surrounding area. Late planted soybeans and corn, which must be planted before frost, were particularly benefited by the rain.

The total moisture as measured at the South Side disposal plant at 11 a. m. was .85 of an inch.

Farmers are hoping for good periodic rains and warm temperatures to bring the crops along. The margin between late planted corn and soybeans and the first killing frost date is altogether too narrow for comfort.

The average date for killing frost in Jacksonville is Oct. 14. But the earliest reported was on Sept. 16, 1918, which resulted in a high percentage of soft corn.

"A frost on Sept. 16 of this year would just about ruin us," says Farm Adviser E. H. Garlich.

Some Idle Ground

He estimates that more than 90% and maybe 95% of crop land in Morgan county has been planted, with the bulk of unplanted tracts lying along creeks and the river.

Arthur Thatcher, Journal Courier correspondent in Jerseyville, reports prospects are far below par, particularly in western Jersey county.

"Early planted corn in many areas was damaged by the hailstorm of July 4th in the locality, and many fields were damaged by the flash floods of June 14th.

"Collier Wedding, former sheriff of Jersey county reported that his farm in the Macoupin creek area is through for this season. "I had about $50 worth of wheat harvested from a high knoll that the flash

Tent City Up At Greene Co. Fairgrounds

CARROLLTON — Despite the building of new barns each year for the stock at the Greene County Agricultural Fair workmen were busy Saturday erecting two extra tents for the hogs, a tent for the horses and a tent for the cattle. In all of these departments there are permanently one to two barns but the barns were filled to overflowing when the stock was released Saturday at 6 p.m. from the Jersey County Fair and arrived at the local fairgrounds in preparation for opening day, July 15.

The box seats in the grandstand were sold at auction Friday evening and the price range was $55 to $30. There will be chairs available in the boxes which may be purchased for each program during the day and evening for the week of the Fair.

Mrs. Mae Alfeld took over the management of the Art Hall in which the late Miss Margaret Eldred had been superintendent for a number of years. Mrs. Alfeld who is annually superintendent of the Farm and Garden show will work in that department also and will be assisted in her work by Mrs. Herschel Hackley Sr. Mrs. Clarence Longmeyer is the new superintendent of the Art and Textiles display succeeding the late Miss Louise Cory who had worked in that capacity for a number of years. Authority Speaks To Symposium On The Handicapped

The executive director of the Illinois Commission for Handicapped Children described advantages of referral and service agencies for exceptional children Monday at MacMurray College as the summer special education symposium moved into its last week.

Jane Bull, a former president of the Illinois state chapter of the International Council for Exceptional Children, spoke in McClelland dining hall as part of a symposium that has included study of the mentally and physically handicapped as well as the socially and emotionally maladjusted. Dr. Robert H. Alexander, formerly of Jacksonville and last year chairman of MacMurray's psychology department, last week described the socially and emotionally maladjusted as a background for improved methods of teaching these children.

One of the major functions of the commission for handicapped children is the coordination of the efforts of all public and private health, welfare and educational agencies as they have to do with physically handicapped or mentally handicapped children. In this capacity, Miss Bull directs the commission to integrate the services of schools with social agencies and medical care programs in providing for an individual handicapped child or in developing a new program for a group of handicapped children.

A member of the International Council's Committee on the Hospitalized Child, Miss Bull is a member also of various professional associations in the field of health, welfare, and education and has served on a number of their committees.

She became executive director of the commission in November, 1947, after starting in 1942 as informational representative. She first taught in public schools in Michigan and South Dakota, later turning to editorial work for an educational publishing house and then to publicity work for a child welfare agency.

WHITE HALL ORACLE ATTENDS POTLUCK OF HILLVIEW RNA

WHITE HALL — Mrs. John Barnard was hostess at her home on Friday night to members of the Past Oracles Club, Royal Neighbors of America, Camp 987. Ivamae Dickerson, president, presided at the short business meeting which opened with the Lord's Prayer and pledge of allegiance.

Mrs. Henry Bishop of Springfield, a member of the club attended the party and won high door prize. Mrs. Letha Ford won bunco. Mrs. Gussie Frazier floating and Mrs. Lucy Beck low. The hostess served an ice box dessert and iced tea.

Unlike the Old World tree whose juices killed Socrates, the misnamed American hemlock is not poisonous to neither man nor beast.

LOOK OUT—Appearing to be heading for a mid-air collision over bustling Chicago, two U.S. Air Force Thunderbird jets roar toward each other at a speed of 10 miles a minute. Actually, it's just an optical illusion, for the planes are in different air lanes, with enough space between them to make the air show a thoroughly safe one. A team of four Thunderbirds put on a thrilling display of skill and speed for thousands who watched from below.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—Joey Giardello had just dropped Walter Cartier three times in the first round and now he was up on a table in his dressing room at Madison Square Garden, talking excitedly with his managers and the mob around him.

"I got a new kid, his name's Carmine," he announced. "How do you spell it?" he was asked.

"I don't know . . . ask my manager, Carmine Graziano. He knows. I don't know how you spell it."

Young Giardello dressed and went outside into the lobby where a mob of his South Philadelphia friends waited. They cheered when he came and they walked out of the building with them, heading for the bright lights of midtown New York. He was a wild kid without a serious thought in his head.

This was early in 1934 and by the next time Joey went through his next few bouts, stopping Willy Troy, then beating the likes of Tiger Jones and Al Andrews and Bobby Jones, he was the top middleweight outside of Bobo Olson, then the champion, and Giardello held Olson in disdain. He was 24 years old and the future seemed to hold nothing but money for him.

Giardello now is a changed fighter. Not because he uses his hands better than he did. He is different chiefly because he seems to have learned that life can be hard on a wild kid who likes to hang around street corners.

Two years ago, Giardello should have beaten Olson for the middleweight title. Instead, his street habits got him into a jam—and jail.

Joey did a four and a half month stretch in a Philadelphia prison—at about the time he should have been flattening Bobo Olson. He went out for a car ride with some of his neighborhood guys one night and they wound up giving a gas station attendant some trouble and a couple of belts. He was a wild kid and they put him away. Today, he looks at things differently.

"I used to look to make money and spend it," he says. "Now I want to make it and get in business some place. You see, Carmine, Jr.—he's three—is a retarded child. We want to put him in a special school. Costs money, but that isn't important. You learn a lot out of something like this. I think of the time I stood in jail and the money it cost me . . . well, you go home at night and play with the kids."

It was because of his clash with the law that Giardello lost the track at Bobo Olson's middleweight crown.

And now that Giardello has thoroughly qualified for a match with Robinson, Sugar Ray takes time out to get more important money with Carmen Basilio, a welter.

"See how life works," muses Giardello. "I knew Olson couldn't take a punch. I saw him fight Robinson in Philadelphia and he was frightened. I knew he had a bad time making 160 pounds. I would have knocked him out just like Robinson did. That was before Archie Moore and Robinson got to him. I would have had the Robinson fight then."

"Now I got to fight guys here and there and wait for Robinson, or until he retires and there is an elimination tournament. The only thing I got going for me is that I'm young enough to wait. I have time at 27."

After the last year-and-a-half, prize fighting should practically be a breeze for Giardello.

"When I got out of jail and fought Charley Cotton a couple of times, I thought I was through," he recalls. "I was weak from being in jail. I lost 12 pounds. My wife, Rosalie, she knows I don't like work, so she kept on me."

"I'm better than ever. I can fight inside and instead of throwing a one-two, then stopping, I double up on punches. Throw a lot of double hooks. Look at my record, it shows you I'm ready. I beat Rory Calhoun and knocked out Bobby Boyd. I'll beat all the middleweights. I just got to wait on Robinson."

Joey Giardello found the right combination for success a couple of years and $100,000 or so too late.

N.Y. Newspaper Says Dodgers To Get New Stadium

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner Monday said he knew nothing about a published report that a new park would be recommended for the use of the Brooklyn Dodgers and added it would be two or three weeks before a report would be made on the feasibility of constructing such a stadium.

The story, appearing on the front page of the World-Telegram and Sun, said the Brooklyn Sports Authority will urge at the Board of Estimate's July 25 meeting that immediate approval be given the ball park project.

The BSA is a three-man body concerned specifically with a stadium to be built in the Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues site, where the Dodgers would like to build their new park.

Dodgers President Walter O'Malley, who last May received permission from the National League to transfer the Dodgers to Los Angeles, is reported to have said the one thing that can keep his club in Brooklyn is a stadium at Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues.

In Los Angeles, county supervisor Kenneth Hahn, a leader in the drive to lure the Dodgers west, told a newsman:

"I seriously doubt that story. I talked to Dodger President Walter O'Malley and he told me: 'Kenney, get all the arrangements ready.'"

"I did not intend to reveal this conversation, but I believe it should be brought out now, in the fact of this report."

Williams Closing In On Mantle's Batting Lead

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Enjoying his best week of the 1937 season, Ted Williams has taken over the American League lead in home runs while threatening Mickey Mantle's month-long edge in the batting competition.

The 38-year-old Williams, playing in his 16th season for the Boston Red Sox, trailed Mantle by 26 batting points and two home runs last week.

In the four days of regular season action since the All-Star game, however, Williams collected 9 hits in 16 times at bat, lifting his batting mark 16 points to 359.

The New York Yankees' star, meanwhile, had only 6 safeties in 19 tries, dropping his average 4 points to 365. Mantle has been the batting leader since June 15.

Five of Williams' hits were homers while only two of Mantle's went out of the park. This pushed Ted's total for the year to 25, as compared with Mickey's 24. It also increased the Red Sox' slugger's lifetime total of 443 homers.

In the National League, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee continued to set the batting pace at .347, an averaged unchanged from last week. The hard-hitting Braves' outfielder is the top man in these departments with 28 home runs and 75 RBIs.

Stan Musial is runnerup in batting with .343.

Bill Skowron of the Yankees is a distant third in American League batting with .332. The husky first baseman is the circuit's leader in runs batted in with 64.

HOLMES AT MONTREAL

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Tommy Holmes, holder of the National League batting record for hitting safely in 37 straight games in 1945, now is managing his seventh team in organized ball.

The parent Brooklyn Dodgers recently named him manager of last place Montreal's Royals in the International League.

Dodgers Collect Five Home Runs, 16 Hits To Smother Braves, 20-4

BROOKLYN (AP)—Brooklyn's Dodgers had themselves a ball Monday night, rapping five home runs, two by Charlie Neal, and rolling up their largest run total of the season to clobber Milwaukee 20-4 and climb within four percentage points of the third place Braves.

The one-game scoring high of the season was set by Cincinnati with a 22-2 job on the Chicago Cubs June 1. But the Brooks, who now have won four in a row with a sweep of the two game set, did manage to tie the Redlegs for the biggest inning of the year in the NL scoring nine in the eighth.

Lanky Don Drysdale, who somehow needed relief from Ed Rubeck to win his seventh, Sandy Amoros and Duke Snider batted the other Brook homers. They were solo shots except Snider's 19th win with one on in the third against starter-loser Bob Trowbridge.

The Brooks belted 16 hits in all and collected 10 bases on balls from a total of five pitchers. Junior Gilliam had four hits, two of them eighth inning singles when the Dodgers sent 13 men to the plate.

The Brooks, who had hit five home runs in one game against the Cubs earlier this season and had rolled up their previous scoring high with an 11-9 decision.

MANTILLA DOING BETTER, BRUTON NEEDS TREATMENT

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves said Monday that one party to a short centerfield collision at Pittsburgh last Thursday night is improving but the other has been ordered back to bed.

Dr. Bruce Brewer examined both Billy Bruton and Felix Mantilla Monday.

Mantilla, Dr. Brewer said, is "much better" and may be able to work out by the weekend. However, Bruton underwent additional treatment Monday and was ordered back to bed until Wednesday, when Dr. Brewer will examine him again.

Mantilla, who was playing shortstop, and centerfielder Bruton collided while chasing a fly ball.

Eight of the 12 varsity coaches whose teams competed in the intercollegiate Rowing Regatta this year were graduated from the University of Washington.

Jack Burke's Wrist Injury May Force Him Out Of PGA Tourney

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Defending champion Jack Burke, Jr., said he'll be forced to withdraw from the PGA Golf Tournament unless his injured wrist improves by Wednesday's teeoff time.

"Every time I hit the ball a sharp pain runs through my left arm," the titleholder from Kamehakea Lake, N.Y., said. "I'll rest today. Tomorrow I'll go out and hit some. If I can hit the ball off the tee, I'll play. Otherwise, I'm out."

Burke, idled for a month by aggravated tendons in his right hand which forced him to quit after 36 holes in the National Open at Toledo, injured his left hand in an accident at his home in Houston. He slipped while coming down the embankment of a creek and hurt his left hand in breaking the fall.

He played an 18-hole exhibition here Sunday with his hand badly swollen, shooting a wild 75. Monday morning he took whirlpool and electronic treatments and rested the hand on doctor's orders.

Under the PGA format, a field of 128 touring and home pros tees off in the opening round Wednesday morning. Double rounds of eliminations are scheduled Thursday and Friday with 36-hole semifinals Saturday and 36-hole finals Sunday.

Eight ex-champions, not including Burke, are in the field. They include Snead, a three-time winner (1942, 1949, 1951), Denny Shute (1936-37, Vic Ghezzi (1941), Chandler Harper (1950), Jim Turnesa (1952), Walt Burkemo (1953), Chick Harbert (1954) and Doug Ford (1955).

Dyna Declared Over-All Winner In Yacht Race

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—The Dyna, a 58-foot yawl entered by Clayton Ewing of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., was declared overall winner of the Port Huron-to-Mackinac Island yacht race here Monday night.

Dr. Mike Tappert of Detroit, race chairman of the sponsoring Bay View Yacht Club of Detroit, said the winners of the other divisions still were uncertain.

The Dyna also was the class A division winner.

The apparent second-place boat in the over-all competition was the Pompadour, skippered by Jack K. Cooke of Toronto, Ont. It also was in the class A division.

A class B boat, the Revelry, skippered by Norm Sarns of Detroit, was the apparent third.

The Sabre, skippered by Roman Brotz of Sheboygan, Wis., was the first across the finish line, but it is ineligible for the over-all championship because it was the only entry in the racing division.

The Pompadour crossed the finish line about 34 hours behind the Dyna, which crossed at 11:37 a.m. Monday. With its handicap, the Pompadour could have won the race by finishing within 31 minutes of the Dyna.

Phillies Move Into 1st Place With 6-2 Win Over Cardinals

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The unpredictable Philadelphia Phillies vaulted into first place in the National League Monday night with prize rookie Jack Sanford pitching a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sanford yielded only five hits in chalking up his 12th victory against two defeats, the best record in the league.

Philadelphia banged out six hits including a two-run homer by Willie Jones and a two-run double by Granny Hamner.

The high-riding Phillies could do no wrong in bouncing the Cardinals out of first place and leaving them half a game behind. It was Philadelphia's 12th win in the last 14 games, giving them a clean sweep over the Cardinals in the three-game series here.

St. Louis starter Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell was chased in Philadelphia's four-run third. St. Louis 000 100 010—2 5 0 Philadelphia 024 000 006—6 1 1 Mizell, Wehmer (3) and Landrith; Sanford and Lonnett. L—Mizell.

Mays Stars As Giants Defeat Chicago 5-3

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays was the big gun for the New York Giants again Monday as he hit his 16th home run, a run-producing double and stole his 24th base during the Giants' defeat of the Chicago Cubs, 5-3.

Mays, whose 12th inning homer downed the Cubs Sunday, reached the left field roof with a long drive off Don Elston in the third inning. The two-run blast enabled the Giants to overcome a 3-2 deficit. It was Willie's third homer in three games.

In the eighth, Mays led off with his two-bagger. He moved to third on Bobby Thomson's punt and scored on Daryl Spencer's sacrifice fly to centerfield.

Willie's effective batting enabled Johnny Antonelli to gain his ninth victory of the season. Antonelli was touched for 10 hits but except for the third inning, he scattered them effectively. The Cubs scored all their runs in that frame on successive singles by Bob Speake, Jim Bolger and Walt Moryn and Banks' 450-foot triple.

The Giants, who had gained a brief lead on Don Mueller's second inning homer, came back with three runs in the third. ERRATIC DEALINGS IN BEANS FEATURES GRAIN MARKET

By WILLARD ROBERTSON
CHICAGO, (U)—A rapid up and down movement in soybeans featured dealings on the Board of Trade Monday.

Soybeans climbed as much as 6 cents above the previous close on buying and short covering, and then dropped as much as 8 1/2 cents and were mixed at the close with nearby futures showing losses. Wheat, rye and feed grains were ahead throughout on weather news.

New wheat closed 3/4 to 2 cents higher, corn 3/4 to 2 1/2 cents unchanged to 1/4 higher, rye 1 1/2 to 2 1/4 higher, soybeans 2 cents lower to 1 1/4 higher, and hard 5 cents a hundred pounds lower to 3 cents higher.

The early run-up in soybeans apparently was a continuation of the sharp rally of Friday, and was augmented by heavy rainfall in the important producing areas. Traders had believed more beans might be planted, making for a larger crop that the government indicated, but the rainfall will delay and possibly cancel further planting plans.

The late selling came partly on profit taking and partly on hedge selling. Traders were disturbed by a report that the government had sold a large quantity of its beans to export dealers. They have been counting on a good export business.

Buying in other grains was due to unfavorable weather. Illinois particularly, in the heart of the soybean growing area, received extremely heavy rains Friday night. The fall ranged up to nine inches at Kankakee. Rains also fell in Indiana and Iowa. The five-day forecast indicates further rainfall in the area.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (U)—Corporate bonds were mixed while U.S. government issues declined Monday.

A little firmness appeared in utility issues in the corporate list but rails and industrials dipped slightly. Volume totaled $3,500,000 par value on the Big Board compared with $2,900,000 Friday.

A very limited demand rather than any selling urgency accounted for the downward drift in U.S. governments, which started early and continued to the close.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (U)—The stock market moved irregularly just below its historic peak in fairly active trading Monday.

Leading issues made gains or losses ranging from fractions to around 2.

Steels, motors and selected issues were on the upside. Aircrafts took some sharp losses. Tobacco shares declined as a series of con-smoking were awaited. Rails were slightly higher.

The steels improved as the outlook in the industry was reported as one of high-level demand for the rest of the year. Improvement was looked for in late summer when the auto manufacturers are expected to order steel heavily for their 1958 models.

The aircrafts continued to decline as the prospect was for more restriction in spending by the Defense Department.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 30 cents to $188.50 with the industrials down 80 cents, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Volume totaled 2,480,000 shares compared with 2,240,000 Friday.

The trend was irregularly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 1,110,000 shares compared with 980,000 on Friday.

Kasper and 14 Tennessee defendants are on trial on criminal contempt charges. They are accused of violating a federal injunction barring any interference with court-ordered integration of white and Negro students at Clinton's traditionally all-white high school last fall.

Throughout the six-day-old trial, Kasper, a former Washington, D. C. bookseller, has been pictured as an "outsider" who incited residents of the Clinton area to outbreaks of mob disorder.

In an unheralded move, the government dropped its charges against Mrs. Zella Nelson, 19, one of the original "Clinton 15" on trial with Kasper.

U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford explained what had long been obvious to everyone in the courtroom—that Mrs. Nelson is an expectant mother. It was this reason the charges against her were dismissed.

Earlier, the jury heard David J. Brittain, 41, former Clinton high school principal, related a story of fierce tensions, threats and mob action which shook the once peaceful little town of Clinton when Negroes were admitted to the previously all-white high school by federal court order.

Brittain testified he first met Kasper shortly after the school opened for the fall term last August.

"Kasper asked me what I was going to do with regard to getting the Negroes out of Clinton high," Brittain said.

"I told him there was nothing we could do about it because we were under court order to integrate," I said. I had only three courses of action—to obey the law, to disobey the law, or to resign my job.

"I told him I was going to obey the law."

Brittain, who served as Clinton High School principal for 14 years and has accepted a position teaching at New York University, said Kasper then "threatened to get me out of that school before the end of the term if I didn't get those Negroes out."

delphia about eight months ago. A doorman at the Central Park West apartment building where he had a room last saw Malloy alive about 9 p.m. Friday. About 24 hours later, a shipping clerk noticed a peculiar odor coming from the small, tin trunk on the railway express platform. The trunk was marked for shipment to "Hal Jefferson, Hotel Ambassador, Los Angeles, Calif."

However, police determined that no such person had made reservations or registered at the West Coast hotel.

Police called by the baggage clerk, pried open the trunk. Inside, wrapped in newspapers and packed in mothballs, they found Malloy's body. He had died from a bullet through the heart. Two other bullets had hit him in the left shoulder and the right cheek. The body was clad only in shorts.

Express company employees recalled that two men delivered the trunk in mid-afternoon Saturday and paid the $40.97 shipping charge. But the pair acted so casually that police felt they may have been hired for the task and were unaware of the gruesome burden within the trunk.

Padro came forward voluntarily Monday to say that he had helped deliver the trunk. He said he did not know what was inside it.

He told police he and Polakowski took the trunk from the latter's apartment and moved it in Padro's car to the express terminal.

From Padro, police were able to trace and arrest Polakowski. Checking luggage firms, detectives found one on Eighth Ave., that sold the murder trunk to a purchaser who, they said resembled Polakowski's description.

Charge Two Men Made $60,000, All Bad, In One Night

CHICAGO (U)—The U.S. Secret Service said Monday that two brothers made $75,000 in one night—all of it bad.

All of the bills had the same serial number, and several columns were missing in the picture of the Lincoln Memorial on the backs of the bills.

But, the funny money got into circulation. People who passed it were arrested almost as fast as they displayed it. Patrolmen seized 15 men and one woman since the inartistic bills began to circulate.

The difficulty was finding the main supply of the stuff, and the people who made it.

During the weekend, Martin L. Bough, 29, a Chicago pressman and plate maker, and his photographer brother, Donald, 30, of suburban Evanston, were taken into custody and charged with counterfeiting.

Paternal said the Bough brothers admitted they had printed the stuff the night of June 16 in the printing plant of Martin's employers, the R. G. Davidson Co.

Robert G. Davidson, president of the firm, said that the illegal use of his equipment wasn't even suspected, and added: "I'm shocked."

Paternal said the Bough brothers named Jesse Cowan, 27, as the boss of the counterfeit operation. Cowan was arrested Monday. All of those seized were Negroes.

"They said Cowan collected the idea as a method of collecting money owed him by Martin Bough," Paternal said.

Deny Motion To Throw Out Hoffa Charges

WASHINGTON (U)—Federal District Judge Burnita S. Matthews Monday denied a motion to throw out the bribery-conspiracy charge against union leader James R. Hoffa. The motion was based on the claim Hoffa was entrapped by John C. Cheasty.

Hoffa's chief counsel, Edward Bennett Williams, moved for a judgement of acquittal as soon as the government completed its case. Judge Matthews denied the motion without comment after listening to arguments of opposing lawyers.

This means the defense now will have to go forward with its case, with the jury deciding the guilt or innocence of the Midwest Teamsters Union leader.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Edward P. Troxell testified the government's case after more FBI agents testified in support of the testimony of Cheasty, New York lawyer-investigator.

Hoffa and Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, are accused of persuading Cheasty to get a job with the Senate Rackets Committee, then bribing him to feed them its secrets.

Cheasty testified he pretended to go along with the alleged scheme while reporting to the committee and the FBI.

In the spring of 1951 Ted Klusowski, Roy McMillan and Wally Post were with Cincinnati. They still are with the Redlegs.

SUBSTITUTE DOCTOR

XXXVI
SUNDAY afternoon there was a session with the lawyers. Valley took him out to talk to old Dr. Lillard, to tell him what had been done.

On Monday morning he made a deposition on the finding of the bag, its opening and its surrender, untouched, to the authorities. That excused him from appearance at the hearing, and it was a positive relief to take refuge in his work, to go to the office and the hospital.

He had one emergency, or what the mother thought might be one—her four-year-old had been discovered drinking out of the birdbath in the yard!

"It was filthy!" said Virginia McManus. "Won't he get typhoid?"

"Oh, I can't promise that he will, Virginia."

She looked at him indignantly. "Don't you think it's serious?"

"I think it could be—and we'll take every precaution. But I would hope the child need not be overly frightened."

He went home for lunch and attended to some business.

Garde was late keeping the rest of his afternoon office appointments, so he could concentrate on them in order not to miss the 4:30 bull session in the doctors' room. Today, he didn't want to miss it.

He came in at a fast walk and went straight to the coffee urn, then sat down with a whoosh of relief.

"Busy day?" asked Cornel.

"Was. I'm glad of it."

There was a little discussion. A telephone call came in for Cornel; and while he talked, Garde thought about taking a shower; he should be getting on home, with all the things he had to do. He must talk again to Nan, in person—not over the phone.

Westerners eat more beef than people in any other region of the country. The Deep South eats the smallest share.

Ruble tugged the knot firm on his shoestring, Windsor poked his head through the opening of his shirt.

"Yes," said Garde, reaching for his dark shoes. "When I talked to Flynn this morning about that tetanus case, he asked me if I could go to Boston. A year ago I worked on one with a nurse who trained in Boston and had come to Children's for some special work. She's back there now, and she asked if I could come. She's a swell person."

As he sat down, Garde gestured with one hand above his head to indicate the little fluted cupcake cap that this nurse wore. "Flynn told her I'd come, and he told me this morning—"

"And now you tell us," said Dewey in an awed tone.

"Well, I worked like a dog today to clear up things. And if Kurt does get home this week, I can be spared."

"So you're going East," said Cornel. "Shut up, Windsor. Of course he's going. But then what, Shelton?"

"YOU'D better ask my wife," Garde tied his second shoe and stood up. He glanced at his friends; all were smiling but not one of them blinked. There were few secrets in Bayard; none in the hospital.

Garde nodded and took his shirt from the hanger.

"You're all invited to the wedding tomorrow. Windsor's going to be my best man."

Ruble and Cornel turned accusingly on Windsor. "First I've heard of it," he assured them. "And me with my best pants at the cleaners."

They all laughed then and shook Garde's hand, and someone asked if Nan would have anything to say about where he worked or about his career in general.

"The way I feel about Nan," said Garde emphatically, "she'll have the whole say about everything!"

Dewey Windsor sighed impressively. "Lucky man!" he declared.

"Lucky girl?" corrected Ruble. (THE END)

PAINTED WITH SAND—Yves M. Offret, Provo Canyon, Utah, displays two samples of his sand art which he "painted" using the colorful sands of his native Utah. Flat, non-removable sandpaintings are common in Paris; but Offret, a 74-year-old resort manager, claims that his sand pictures are the only ones which can be turned upside down without getting out of shape. After constructing a simple natural wood frame with double glass spaced about two inches apart, Offret carefully makes the picture from the bottom up, using colored sand and following up gradually with plain sand for support until frame is full and the sealed. Everything must be kept completely dry throughout the "painting" operation. The "painting" at left is "The Delicate Arch," South Utah; the one at right, "The Great White Throne," Zion National Park, Utah.
